SKETCHES OF LITTLE OLD NEW YORK
BY O. O. MCINTYRE
Telegram Bureau: Rooms 121-123 Hotel Majestic, West Seventy-second Street.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—I am very fond of Dr. Guy Campbell. He sings like Caruso and the women applaud and we used to go barefoot together in the West and both hated soap and loved corn silk cigarettes. I like him so well that if there is anything I have got to want he can have it—right in the neck.

I dropped into his place the other day and opened my mouth and revealed to him my fangs. He looked wise and then jabbed a nutpick into a miniature Mammoth Cave and then I began romping through fields of orchids with wood nymphs dressed in golden spangles and when I came to a young woman was bathing my wrists and Dr. Campbell was pouring ice down my back.

And then I grew cheerful and almost facetious and we talked about old times and he admired a gold watch that my father gave me for quitting cigars and I gave it to him and I gave the young woman my pearl scarfpin and took her telephone number and when I left we all shook hands all around.

Going out I slapped the elevator boy on the back and told him how much I thought of him and went out to the newsstand and bought $2 worth of magazines all alike.

And this is just written to let Dr. Campbell and his attendant and the elevator boy and the newsstand man know that all of that bull I peddled doesn't go. I want my watch and my scarfpin. And the next time they give me gas they'll have to hit me in the head with an ax first.

They buried Charles Becker the other day—Becker the bank thief whose criminal career won international fame. He was an artist. His work approached perfection and he was known and feared in France, England, Turkey as well as Baltimore and New York.

So clever was he that the Bankers' Association pensioned him on conditions that he should not use his skill as a counterfeiter. He passed on while serving as an employee with a private detective agency.

He died in poverty, a living example of the saying that crime never pays. When he was in Sing Sing a delegation called on the warden and asked him not to set Becker at rough work that might impair his "delicacy of touch" and jeopardize his future livelihood.

That gurgling noise you hear is the death rattle of the Hat Snatchers' Union. For years inoffensive and lamb like citizens have had their hats snatched out of their hands and then paid to get them back again in Broadway cafes and hotels. They submitted to it.

The man who has most of the privileges and supplies the hat checkers is a millionaire. At some of the larger hotels he pays as high as $50,000 a year. The hat checkers do not get the money. They get $5 a week and they are searched every night before they leave.

Most of the hat checkers are impudent and if they are not tipped and many patrons have been lost by hotels employing them. The first man to abolish the tipping for taking care of hats and wraps was Copeland Townsend, of the Majestic, and many other hotels are to follow his lead.

Coney Island has had the worst season in its history. The weather has had something to do with it but that is not the chief reason. Coney Island has got to get rid of its hoodlums. The worst element in New York makes Coney is rendezvous. There are car rowdies, gun men, street walkers and the scum of the underworld who make it their playground when they leave New York. The police will have to use their clubs more freely before Coney Island will enjoy the patronage of former years.

Sudden Death

Before an Insurance Company will take a risk on your life the examining physician will test your water and repeat whether you are a good risk. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbar, rheumatism and gout, or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night—take heed, before too late!

You can readily overcome such conditions and prolong life by taking the advice of a famous physician, which is: "Keep the kidneys in good order, avoid too much meat, salt, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking 'Anurie' in tablet form." You can obtain "Anurie" at almost all drug stores. It was the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. If you cannot obtain it at your drug store send him 10 cents for trial package "Anurie," or $1.00 for full treatment.—Advertisement.
